IGCSE or CBSE? Which syllabus has better future prospects?

CBSE education

The CBSE Board comes under the Central Government of India. There are many Government and private schools in India that come under the CBSE Board. These schools follow the CBSE curriculum for school education. All Kendriya Vidyalayas, NCT of Delhi schools and Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalayas are affiliated to the CBSE Board.

IGCSE education

Due to the similarity of the IGCSE Board with ICSE and CBSE Board's educational system, the Central and State Governments have recognised the IGCSE Board in our country. The IGCSE syllabus concentrates on the total development of a student by providing separate sessions for each skill-development. This includes education, teamwork, analytical and language skills. A noteworthy feature of the Board is its standardized curriculum. This course has got validity and the certification is accepted globally.

Key differentiators between IGCSE education and CBSE education

- CBSE is Central Board of Secondary Education whereas IGCSE is International General Certificate of Secondary Education.

IGCSE as it concentrates on the total development of the students by providing separate sessions for each skill-development. This syllabus includes education, language, teamwork, and analytical skills and emphasizes more on practical aspects of each subject than theoretical aspects. Also, it is more expansive in approach and gives equal weightage to all the fields, namely Science, Mathematics, Humanities, and Languages. One biggest difference between IGCSE and CBSE is that the IGCSE's approach is broader and it emphasizes on the importance of all-round development rather than concentrating on knowledge-gathering and examinations.
